The Department of Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior at the University of South Carolina (USC) Arnold School of Public Health (ASPH, www.sph.sc.edu) is seeking applicants for a clinical (instructional) faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Candidates are expected to have a doctoral degree in public health, health behavior, or a related social-science field, and experience teaching at an academic institution.

The Department has masters (MPH, MSPH) and doctoral (PhD, DrPH) programs and two undergraduate minors, and department faculty contribute to teaching for the ASPH bachelor’s (BA, BS) program. There is also an online professional MPH program within the Department. The successful applicant will be expected to contribute to the undergraduate and graduate teaching program for both in-person and online courses, and to help supervise graduate students. Course topics may include theory, research methods, program planning, program evaluation, and community health.

The faculty and students in the Department of Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior focus on understanding how policy, environmental, institutional, and individual actions improve the public’s health. Topics of departmental research strength include community-engaged interventions, health communication, use of technology for improving health and health systems, global health, and social and behavioral determinants of health.

Columbia, SC enjoys more than 300 days of sunshine annually, and has ready access to both beaches and mountains. The city is the state capital, and hosts historical and cultural festivals, performing arts, and sporting events, and has parks and outdoor recreation opportunities including the nearby Congaree National Park and 50,000-acre Lake Murray.

Applicants should send: 1) a cover letter stating career goals and the relevance of the candidate's training and experience to the position, 2) a current CV, 3) a teaching philosophy statement, and 4) names and contact information of three references. Please submit your application via e-mail to: pmetz@mailbox.sc.edu, or via regular mail to: Clinical/Instructional Search Committee, Department of Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior, 915 Greene St., University of South Carolina, Columbia, SC 29208-4005. Receipt of applications will begin on March 15, 2016. The search coordinator is Ms. Pamela Metz (telephone: 803-777-7096). The University of South Carolina is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. The University of South Carolina is responsive to the needs of dual career couples.